The Pastor's Corner

To the saints at Stone Mountain:

As the weather gets warmer and classes are ending for those of us who are students, our minds are turning to vacation/summer travel.

I hope you are planning a getaway or two (or three) this summer. I find leaving town to be therapeutic. :-)

There is a small country church in Cassville, WI at which I preach at least once a year and have done so since 1992. I was invited to preach a four-night winter revival there in 1992. These last few years I have preached an "A Night with Dr. Farmer" event. I stay a week and spend the other days (when not preaching) enjoying Wisconsin. I eat the freshest cheese, visit a farm, ride or fly through the countryside and cruise up and down the Mississippi River.

For a trip to qualify as a true getaway, I maintain that the trip must give me a change of

Place
Face
Pace

When I go to Cassville (population 1,100) I sleep late, walk down the runway of the airport, visit Cabela's, ride horses and do that which I don't do at home. The biggest benefit is that I am refreshed when I return home. Even if but for a few weeks, the stress of the daily routine here melts away. I am more balanced because I have seen different faces, visited different places and moved at different paces.

How about you, beloved? Leaving town this summer? I hope so.

It will be good for you...and us. :-)

Glad the tomb is empty.
